

The surprising meaning of an imaginary cosmological model

ABSTRACT. This paper points to a certain (more or less surprising) similarity between the language that is employed by those who talk about human creation and the natural language that is used by those who attempt to interpret mathematical models of the early universe.

KEY WORDS: human creation, quantum fluctuations, models of the early universe, mathematical and natural language

Beata Anna Polak, Tomasz Polak, Międzywydziałowa „Pracownia Pytań Granicznych”, Uniwersytet im. Adama Mickiewicza, ul. Fredry 10, 60-701 Poznań